About Us

Hack the Bias is an initiative by Robogals UCalgary, a long-standing club and one of over 30 global chapters of the international Robogals organization. Robogals is dedicated to inspiring, empowering, and educating those traditionally underrepresented in STEM, encouraging early engagement through hands-on learning and mentorship.

Building on this mission, Hack the Bias aims to cultivate creative, tech-driven solutions to address issues of systemic bias and foster a more inclusive future.

Mission

Our hackathon centers on the powerful theme of using innovative technology to solve systemic issues.

This event challenges participants to harness creativity and cutting-edge tools to develop solutions that address deep-rooted social challenges such as systemic bias, inequality, and barriers to inclusion.

Vision

Building on the great turnout and success from last year's edition, we're excited to host an extended 36-hour hackathon from January 16 to 18, providing participants with more time to collaborate, ideate, and prototype impactful projects.

This year, we plan on providing dedicated sponsor booths and networking times throughout the event, giving sponsors a unique opportunity to engage directly with participants, showcase their brand, and build meaningful connections.
